

A Single Point of Contact for Multinational Employers

Faegre Drinker is your partner in international employment law, advising multinational public and private companies on complex cross-border employment and human resources issues and opportunities.

Bespoke Advice — the World Over

Through decades of experience, our team has developed a particular awareness of cross-border legal and cultural differences. We understand the workforce issues that can arise in various jurisdictions and provide bespoke advice to clients on a range of international labor and employment matters:

| Employee hiring, terminations, layoffs and investigations | Enterprise-wide benefits and workplace policies for multinationals | Expatriate assignments and secondments | Data privacy and information security | Trade union issues and collective contracts | Global restructuring and structural optimization | Cross-border M&A and joint ventures | Restrictive covenants and business protection | Multicountry surveys | U.K., U.S. and global immigration |

Designed for Clients

As a Faegre Drinker client, you only make one phone call — even if 100 countries are implicated.

Our cross-border labor and employment team is ready to support your most complex workforce needs, regardless of geography or time zone. We collaborate seamlessly with subject matter authorities within Faegre Drinker's platform and across global law firm networks to bring you practical, user-friendly advice grounded in your workforce structure and priorities. Our decades of inbound and outbound experience across more than 150 jurisdictions help you conduct business on a global scale.

International Reach

With a national footprint in the U.S., strategic offices in London and Shanghai and trusted global networks of firms offering local insight, Faegre Drinker is positioned to help support your workforce needs around the globe.

A Leader in Client Service

Our clients are at the start — and the heart — of all we do. Faegre Drinker's international team is ready to respond, no matter where you are or when you need us. From day-to-day human resource advice to global strategy, we produce fresh, practical ideas to support management and advance your business objectives.
